OUR PRINCIPAL

I'll never forget that first day of school four years ago.
We were freshmen and scared.
Scared of the upperclassmen, the teachers, the classes.
But especially of our principal, Mr. Roth.

He was a tall man, with short hair.
His suits were old and baggy.
He patrolled the halls like a prison guard.
And used his voice to settle everyone down.

After we got to know our principal,
We found he wasn't really all that frightening.
He had understanding and cooperativeness.
He had authority and knew how to use it.

Then, last year, he got two new suits,
And began to wear his hair 1/8 inch longer.
He didn't walk around the halls as much as before,
And his voice wasn't quite as loud.

It wasn't too long before we knew he had cancer.
And they were trying to stop its spread.
He was gone three to four times a week for treatments.
But the doctors could do nothing.

On the first day of school this year,
We learned that our principal had resigned.
Tears formed in our eyes,
And We knew this year wouldn't be the same.

Our principal would no longer be here,
His "children" would be led by someone else.
No longer would we see him walk through the halls,
Or make a joke about our short skirts and long hair.

The doctors gave up hope,
But he still hopes, as do I.
Hoping, we know not what for.
But still hoping.

Hoping and praying for his return,
Which we all know will never be,
But he still remains in the halls every day with me.
Laughing, joking, smiling, understanding, forever in my heart.

For our principal hasn't left us, really,
Only his person has.
His face and courage have become a part of us.
Something for us to remember and for him to be proud.

A SELF-EVALUATION

Man is no more
Than what he makes of each day.
From the greatest day he experiences,
To the simplest day he lives.
Some days are a burden from dawn
to dusk,
And you crave their end.

Others are unbearably beautiful,
And your heart swells in your chest--
Peace descending over all you touch.
A day's importance can be measured
Only by you.

Your neighbor knows not
What means more to you inside.
Whatever is put into a day
Will be taken from it;
Because man is no more
Than what he makes of each day.

As I lie in restless slumber, I hear a distant wind
A wind of love, of life and death, and questions left unanswered.
The wind is warm but yet it's cold. The future--so unknown.
A winding road, a dying tree. What lies around the corner?

I stood watching as you crossed
the street for the last time.
Trying hard to memorize you.
Knowing it would be important
The way you walked, the way you looked back over your shoulder
at me.

Years later I would hear the singing of the wind
And that day's singing would come back.
That time of going would return
to me every sun-gray day
April or August it would be the same for years to come.

Man has not made the kind of bromide that would let me sleep
without your memory
Or written exotically enough to erase the excitement of just your hands.

These long years later it is worse
For I remember what it was as well as what it might have been.

All photographers attempt to be original, creative, and "better" in their work. This page is designated "The Photographer's Page", so as to illustrate different techniques that have been used at various locations in the 1973 FALCON. The photo of Jon Strong was taken in strong sunlight with bars superimposed over the photo. The shot of Dick Johnson was taken in strong sunlight with nylon stretched tightly over the photograph, when it was printed. The photograph of Tracy Tilgner is a time exposure that was made in the dark room; thereby bringing the world of the photographer out of the tiny space behind locked doors. The picture of myself is a direct line photograph, taken with the purpose of removing all grey tones, resulting in true blacks and whites.

West Sioux High . . . Years to Remember.

The four years of high school are probably the most important of your life. They influence the kind of person you will be--give you basic knowledge, competition and friendship.

The purpose of an annual is to serve as a moment of these years. To remember yesterday as we step into tomorrow. Twenty years from now I hope you can pick up this annual and once more be back in West Sioux.
